If a few more of the latter were dleared away it would be well, as they merely tend to deceive the Siamese authorities as to the real power of the Navy. We hear also that the crews of the different vessels have been made up to their full complement, and that the contractors for stores and work are regularly paid, All this is most satisfactory, and the authorities of closely printed matter, to which reference is deserve great credit for their activity, and zent

> Commenting on the claim of China to suzeranity over Sikkim, the London Globe of the 18th ultimo, says:-" The object sought by these pretensions is of a two-fold character-political and commercial. European aggressiveness i barred out from these outlying territories by the fear of giving unbrage to China, and Eu ropean goods are, of course, equally prevented from entering. Whether there be that splendid opening for British trade in Thibet which some authorities recken on may, perhaps, be disputable. But there is no question whatever that it is the fixed policy of Peking to hermetimany Anglo-Indians would make an end, once for all, of the claim of China to exercise suzerainsist in offering provecation to British India, the Mandarins repudiate all responsibility on the ground that this course is pursued in opposition affects to be wounded and demands humiliating concessions. The real difficulty is that, circumstanced as we are in Asia, with one great European Power deminating the North and anfriendship of China is of immense consequence to our political interests. The Peking Court knows this, and trades on its knowledge, believing that Great Britain would submit to almost any extortion or ill-treatment sconer than forfeit the good will of her powerful neighbour. and natural ally. It is a shrowd view of the situation, reflecting credit on Mandarin diplomatic sagacity; but it must not be carried too far. English patients has its limits, and these are stretched to the breaking point when China andsciously advances a claim to exercise suzerainty over Sikkim, which has been a British dependency for many years. Were that demand granted, we might have a similar one put forward in respect to Cashmere or Chittagong."

It has been stated by the newspapers The Exchange Plate, presented by the Banthat I was in Bangkok for a certain length of time and that I enjoyed a very good situation there. I was suddenly called away by a government call which forced me to give up that situation. The eath by which I am bound to the society forces me to give up anything and follow the order of the society. I did so, but being in debt, and not able to settle my affairs at Bangkok, I was forced to appeal to a friend to stand security for me. He did so for a few days, and then refused to stand security any longer. I was compelled then to leave Bangkok without previous notice. I asked the captains of several steamers to give me a passage to Sai- Mr. Triad' Forerunner, 11st. 4lbs..... gon or Hongkong, but they refused. I then with a fishing boat-not one only, but thirty-nine fishing boats-worked my way down the whole coast of Siam, Cambodia, and Cochin-China. The hardships I had to endure it is impossible for me to lay before your Lordship. I can only say it is simply on account of being faithful to the society I belong to, I was compelled to carry out their orders under any circumstances. The society I belong to is one that assists those who are banished and torn from their friends and sent to Siberia and the other Russian possessions out here. I have been the means of bearing cheering news to several of the exiles from their friends and I have arranged their affairs for them unknown to the Russian Government for the last seven years, and had had the world offered to me I could not have disoboyed the command I received at that time. The consequence was, after passing from port to port. from one fishing village to another, living on rice and fish, and sometimes for days together on nothing, the natives refused to take me any further. This was at Kosumote, an island, I was forced to construct a raft there to bring me to the mainland, where I noticed there were fishing boats, and after a long struggle I succeeded in reaching a fishing village. It then Orders for extra copies of the Daily Press should occurred to me to consider with what story I could advantage, but Leapyear was declared the winbe sent before 11 am, on the day of publication. approach a place where there was a European Government. I represented myself as a shipwrecked sailor-not the owner of a vacht, but a sailor; but being unable to speak the native language the report reached Saigon that I was the owner. All this I have done, and I am will ing to bear the punishment, but I have as a consolution the reflection that whatever suffering have to go through, and have gone through. have fulfilled my duty to the society I belong to, and have been the means of release to four unfortunates banished by the Russian Government to Siberia for thinking liberally or at tempting to raise their country to a higher de gree of civilization. It is on that account that I have been forced to tell the story I have, but which I had not the least intention of making public. It has become public against my will I arrived in this colony with plenty of means to go away with, perhaps without being detected or caught, but, your Lordship, the weight of political affairs I have had to bear, in addition o the story I have had to tell about this wreck —I decided the affair at the Victoria Hotel whether I should give myself up to justice or wait until justice found me out. NGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY.

WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION: An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronu ciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore charac-To illustrate the vast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration :---

Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Modhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of the mexamples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-

For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who CUMS to be lent on First Mortgage, understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. 179 To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion-

It comprises upwards of two thousand large
